PERSONAL.

Levi Clay of Portland spent Sunday at City-point.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence F. Wyman of Canton, Mass., are here for a visit.

Miss Louise Haseltine went to Boston the first of the week for a brief stay.

Mrs. A. P. Mansfield left yesterday for Massachusetts, where she will spend several weeks.

Harry M. Prentiss is in Cumberland Mills this week, attending the State conference of congregational churches.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred V. Cottrell returned fromoston last Tuesday and are at their home on Congress street for the summer.

Miss Grace Hayes of the N. E. Telephone office, is enjoying a two weeks' vacation, during which she will visit friends in Bangor and Bath.

Two former employes of the shoe factory are town, Charles Godfrey of Auburn and W. Ford of Brockton, Mass., the latter arriving Sunday.

The many friends of Mr. Wallace R. Tarbox will be pleased to know that he continues to improve. Dr. Seth C. Gordon of Portland, his attending physician, visited him Friday and expressed himself as much pleased with his condition.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kirkpatrick of St. Paul, Minn., arrived last week, and Mr. K. has since been busily engaged getting his launch ready to go into commission. They made many friends during their former visits here and are ways welcomed.

Principal Clarence W. Proctor, Miss Caroline Field, and Miss Malvina V. Parker of the Belfast High school went to Waterville Saturday to attend the department meetings of the college and Preparatory School Association. Miss Annie V. Field also made the trip.

AGRICULTURE IN COLORADO.

Three Belfast Boys Who Have Made Good in the West.

Mr. J. F. Wilson, who spent the winter with his son, Jessie E. Wilson, in Fort Collins, Colorado, visited Greeley and other places in the vicinity and gives a very interesting account of the ranches and of agriculture in that section. Irrigation is used in many sections and it obviates any danger of crop failure, while the land is so rich that no fertilizer is needed, except, which are grown for sugar making, will, however, exhaust the soil in 3 years, and the land then laid down to alfalfa, which seems to renew it. Three crops of alfalfa are cut each year and it sells for about half the price of hay in the eastern markets. It is said that the roots of the alfalfa penetrate the soil to the depth of 18 feet, and Mr. Wilson had convincing proof as to 12 feet. Potatoes cannot be grown successfully in this rich soil, but land in the vicinity of Greeley, which is the banner potato section, produces good crops. Mr. Wilson was often asked when was raised down in Maine, and when he replied that one county one had raised 20,000,000 bushels of potatoes a year past the questioners were astounded. A potato buyer in Greeley, however, had heard of Arrostook. Mr. Wilson was much amused at a article in a Maine paper telling the farmers of Waldo county that they could compete with the west in raising beef for market. In Colorado cattle are grazed on government land or which they pay 25 cents per head each year, and Mr. Wilson saw cattle in the market at from the range that were in prime condition. Here cattle must be kept up and fed seven months in the year, which puts Colorado with the Colorado cattlemen out of the question. In the matter of fuel Colorado is greatly favored, having an abundance of coal for burning the English canal coal, that costs $1. It ignites as readily as wood, burns freely, and leaves no cinders.

Mr. Wilson visited Mr. A. T. Condon, the head of the Condon Mercantile Co. of Greeley, and told an interesting story of the success which has attended this Belfast boy in the west. For several years he has been on the road for a large concern at a salary of over $3,000 and expenses, and had built a nice residence in Colorado, when he found in Greeley what he thought to be a favorable opportunity to engage in business for himself. Two Jews who had gone into business there had not met with success, and Mr. Condon bought them out. His first year's sales amounted to $100,000, and each year since has shown an increase. This year he has enlarged his store and Mr. Wilson believes his sales will reach $250,000 or more.

With Mr. A. W. Thompson he is engaged in a real estate speculation, of which mention was recently made in The Journal, and which promises to be very profitable. They bought a large tract of land near Greeley, which will be irrigated by a big irrigating canal now under construction at a cost of nearly $12,000,000, and the railroads which are coming into Greeley pass through or near this tract. They were offered a handsome advance over the price paid soon after buying the property. From their sources we know that Mr. Jesse E. Wilson is flourishing and is popular and prominent in his new home; so that it can be said of the three Belfast boys mentioned that they have made good in the west.

J. B. WALKER.

JOHN R. WALKER is in Boston on business.....

JOHN R. DUNTON, Esq., and R. I. MORSE, Esq., of Belfast were in town on a fishing trip last Saturday.....Mrs. Rhoda Benner is visiting her son, W. A. Benner, in Brewer.....Mrs. Fred Maloney of North Union was in town last Saturday, delivering her millinery orders.....Miss Belle Trum is quite ill at the home of Mr. O. C. Cram.....Rev. E. H. Dinslow, pastor of the Baptist church in the village, cordially invites the members of E. H. Bradstreet Post, A. R. A., and all veterans with the ladies of the A. R. A. to attend divine service at the church on Memorial Sunday, May 30th, at 2.30 o'clock. There will be a Memorial sermon and special benedictions and deacons. The annual memorial service of E. H. Bradstreet Post, G. A. R., will take place in the church on Monday afternoon, May 31st, at 2 o'clock. Rev. C. H. Bryant, of Seaboard will deliver the address and the music will be by the village choir and the eureka Cornet Band.....Beginning next Sunday the Sunday services will be held in the church auditorium until further notice. The Friday evening prayer meetings now begin at 7 o'clock instead of 7.30 as formerly. The Friday night meetings have been done without expense. The attending during the past winter and spring seasons.....Dr. Harry Low, wife and little son of Salem, Mass., are visiting at G. N. Stevens'. Work upon the chapel is going on and it is hoped it will be completed by Memorial Day. The work has been done without expense to the members of the church or citizens of the town, through the kindness of Mrs. Daniel Low of Salem, Mass., and it is hoped the request for contributions or labor will meet with a hearty response.

Washington Whisperings.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 17th. The tariff bill seems to keep pace with the thermometer. Just as the weather in Washington is most delightful, and Senators are in no haste to get away, especially the new members, who wish to deliver their first great speech in favor of what they have been preaching in magazines and elsewhere before coming to Congress. A considerable portion, therefore, of the present month will be given up to the so-called set speeches, but as soon as the thermometer gets up to eighty or ninety degrees then the real progress on the bill will commence. Various predictions are made as to the date of adjournment—running from June 1st to August 1st, but it is still hoped that the bill will be in the President's hands before the end of the fiscal year. Although at the close of the debate it may be passed speedily in the Senate, there is yet the Conference Committee to consider, and it is feared that many days, if not weeks, will be consumed here. This Committee will probably consist of either fourteen or sixteen members—seven or eight each of the Committee of Finance of the Senate and of the Ways and Means Committee of the House.

While much attention is being given to the income tax, it is not likely that such a feature will be put in the bill at the present session. The maximum and minimum features will also be assailed, but it is thought that this phase of tariff making will find a place in the so-called Payne bill.

Formal notice of the intention of the American Government to terminate the commercial agreements with a number of other countries, made in conformity with section 3 of the Dingley tariff act, has been given by the State department. This action is based upon the mere intent and wish of Congress as shown by the pending legislation. Formal commercial agreements under the Dingley act exist with Great Britain, Germany, France, Italy, Spain, Portugal and the Netherlands, while informal understandings, the bases of which are presidential proclamations, have been entered into with Switzerland and Bulgaria.

The importations from abroad continue to increase—large amounts of manufacturers' materials coming in the month of March being valued at $100,000,000. As there has been a considerable decline in the prices of such articles, the amount imported during March, 1909, represents nearly or quite twice as great a quantity as the forty million dollars worth imported in March, 1908. This, of course, means increased activity in manufacturing circles, and there is still the optimistic feeling in all business centers that a pronounced improvement will be seen as soon as the tariff bill becomes a law. This feeling is further accentuated by the aggregate value of building permits delivered by the municipal authorities during the month of March, 1909, in ninety-five cities in the United States, which show a total of over $80,000,000, representing a 46 per cent increase over the February total and an 82 per cent increase over the March figures of a year ago.

The President is gradually making changes in various offices, both at home and abroad, and his appointments still meet with the utmost satisfaction. While taking the advice of Senators and Representatives Mr. Taft at the same time retains the right to make appointments which seem to him to be the best man in every case. While the President shows in every appointment, and every act, that he proposes to be the President of the whole people, without regard to party and without regard to section, still he has made it emphatic that he is a Republican and proposes to build up the Republican party in every legitimate way possible. This is indicated by the interest he has taken in the coming gubernatorial election in Virginia and the elections in other States, where he proposes to have members of his Cabinet go and preach sound Republicanism—not so much in the hope of overturning the present Democratic majorities, as for the purpose of building up a strong Republican party and making the best showing possible.

While there is a considerable difference of opinion among the leaders of the party in both Senate and House as to certain schedules and features of the new tariff bill, still there is a feeling that there will be no serious breaks in the party, as has been the case in the Democratic party, and those Democrats who are predicting a victory next year in the Congressional election are simply making empty guesses and electing their majority, as they usually do, a year before the election, while the election itself will show a very different result. Republicans on the inside, who know what they are talking about, do not hesitate to predict that the Republican majority in the next House of Representatives will be much larger than in the present House. Of course it is conceded that the state of business and industry during the next year will have a large bearing upon the result, but it is believed that the new tariff law will be most generally accepted as satisfactory, and that a most emphatic revival of business will follow its enactment. There is no fear that the Republicans will lose ground, but on the contrary they will increase their party membership in all sections of the country.

FINANCIAL ADVERTISING.

Banks and Trust Companies Have Followed Merchants' Lead.

In these days of newspaper advertising the most successful business houses in any department of mercantile industry are those which are most persistent and painstaking in the preparation of their material for publication. Many of the large retail houses have advertising departments, which look after this branch with care and exactness exceeded by no other branch. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are expended annually by these houses to reach the eye and ear of the reading public, and the managers find the investment a profitable one.

Within the last few years the managers of banks and trust companies have found newspaper advertising a most profitable investment. In no other way can they so quickly and effectively reach the eye and ear of those with whom they desire to communicate as through the columns of the newspaper.—Doylestown (Pa.) Intelligencer.

Rev. I. W. Williamson, Huntington, W. Va. writes: "This is to certify that I used FOLEY'S Kidney Remedy for nervous exhaustion and kidney trouble and am free to say that it will do all that you claim for it." FOLEY'S Kidney Remedy has restored health and strength to thousands of weak, run down people. Contains no harmful drugs and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

The feature of the new clubhouse which the Bangor yacht club is building at High Head is an 800-gallon gasoline tank. It will be buried at some distance from the boat slip where there will be a pump, and another pump on the street side for supplying automobiles. It will be equipped with an automatic meter and filter. Gasoline can be handled in this way by the club at a considerable saving in expense, besides being very convenient.

Capt. Barker's 70th Birthday.

He is Greeted at His Home by a Band of Faithful Employees.

(Elmira, N. Y. Telegram, May 2nd.)

Frederick Barker, president of the firm of Barker, Rose & Clinton, incorporated, hardware dealers on Lake street, passed the seventieth milestone in the journey of life, Thursday, and on that night was agreeably surprised at his home, No. 514 West Water street, by the members of the firm, employees, and a few friends. Indeed, the ladies of his household had also a kindly and earnest hand in the affair.

Captain Barker, as he was more generally known, received many congratulations during the day and in the evening was resting at his home when about fifty staunch friends of the well-known business man took possession of the house and heaped congratulations upon him, now seventy years young.

The members of the firm presented Mr. Barker a handsome gold-headed cane. The employees in the wholesale department gave him a handsome gold-headed umbrella, while the retail department employees presented him a handsome smoking stand and set. A literary and musical program was rendered, which was much enjoyed by all. Impromptu recitations were made by Miss Susan Rose and by Frank Weeks.

Miss Nora Reidy and Miss Laurie Soderquest served tempting refreshments. One of the most enjoyable moments of the evening was signaled when W. H. S. Dean, one of the oldest employees of the firm, and a man loved and honored by all, entered the house. When he was recognized he was greeted with cheers. He has been with the firm continuously for nearly thirty-seven years, but last summer his health began to fail and in September he was compelled to cease active work.

While practically confined to his home, he is sometimes able to be out, and Thursday night could not resist the temptation to call upon Mr. Barker and congratulate him. "I am not in it now," remarked Mr. Barker, when he greeted Mr. Dean. Among other of the older employees of the company who were present were H. W. MacGowan, who has also been with the company thirty-seven years, James Craig, one of the oldest in the employ of the firm; H. W. Payne, who has rendered a service of twenty-nine years; Frank Weeks, Albert Weeks, Snyder P. Atwater, Guy S. Griswold, Wesley Jennings and Maxwell Minier have all spent nearly twenty-five years in the employ of Mr. Barker.

Among other employees who have rendered faithful and long service are Eugene Himm, Fletcher Griswold, Eugene Stowell and Ross C. L'Amoreaux. William Shearer is one of the oldest in the company, he having been with Mr. Barker since 1878. W. J. Clark is also numbered in the twenty-five year list. H. D. Bolt and Robert Ford, who are on the road and were unable to be present and congratulate Mr. Barker, have been in the employ of the company for about twenty years.

Mr. Barker was born in Montville, Me., on April 29, 1839. He spent his early days on the farm and in 1859 started out to seek his fortune in the world. He began at Belfast, Me., where he secured employment in a wholesale house. In 1862 he enlisted in the army and during the civil war was the captain of company I, Twentieth regiment, Maine volunteers. In 1864 he engaged in the hardware business in Belfast, and there laid the foundation for the excellent business education which he rapidly acquired. In 1869 he was ill and spent the winter in Cuba. In 1870 he was in South America. In May, 1871, he returned to Maine, but remained there but a short time, coming to Elmira on June 12, 1871. He remained in Elmira and Montour Falls until October of that year, when he began business with the firm of Ayrault, Rose & Co., hardware dealers, who occupied the two stores on Lake street now occupied by Major Sadler and Charles A. Georgia.

In 1873 the firm became Booth, Dounce, Rose & Co., and in 1875 it was again changed to Barker, Dounce, Rose & Co. I. D. Booth retiring. In 1888 the firm again changed to Barker, Rose & Gray. In 1898 Arthur Clinton purchased the interest of Mr. Gray and the firm was incorporated as a stock company. Mr. Barker was made the president and has been held in that position since. The firm has since been known as the Barker, Rose & Clinton company.

The firm of Barker, Rose & Gray occupied the building at the southwest corner of Lake and Water streets, and was doing a thriving business. On the morning of June 30, 1890, the building was burned to the ground.

At that time Daniel R. Pratt and Cortland Carrier were doing a hardware business on Market street, on the present site of the old Family theater. While the fire was still smoldering, Mr. Barker called the members of his firm together and opened negotiations with Messrs. Pratt and Carrier, with the result that the same day the firm of Barker, Rose & Gray purchased the business controlled by Pratt & Co., and began business in that store.

They also opened a retail store on East Water street. In August of the same year the company began the construction of the large block at Nos. 109-113 Lake street, which was completed in March, 1891, and has been occupied by the company since.

There are few men who have worked almost continuously for over fifty years who are as hale and hearty as Captain Barker. The weight of years seems to rest lightly on his shoulders, and while his hair is silvery, his step is full of life and spring. His fair and honest dealings have won for him a place not attained by all in the business world and he is known from coast to coast as a man whose word is as good as his bond.

May Captain Barker have many, many more birthdays, and may all be happy and pleasant as the one just past this week.

SOME OLD RECORDS.

[From our Seaport Correspondent.]

Copy of a receipt for taxes given by Andrew Leach, town treasurer of Seaport, to Mr. Enos West in 1854. The original was found among the old papers of Mr. West by his son, Capt. Wilson N. West:

SEAPORT, April 29, 1854. Received of Enos West his taxes for 1853, eight dollars and ninety two cents.

A. LEACH, T. Treasurer.

This receipt was written in a space measuring 3-4 inch deep by 4 inches wide. Following is a copy of a notification which has been in the possession of The Journal correspondent for many years, and which was 100 years old on Saturday, May 8th:

Mr. David Nichols, you are hereby summoned to appear before Joseph Crarey, Esq., within three days after the receipt of this summons and take the oath required by law as a tithingman.

ZETHAN FRENCH JOSEPH P. MARTIN (Selectmen SAMUEL SHUTE Prospect, May 8, 1809.

David Nichols was born in Londonderry, N. H., in 1761 and died in Seaport in 1854. The house he built is now owned by Mr. George Marks in the eastern part of the village on the main road. Joseph Crarey, Esq., lived at Bar Point, now Penobscot Park, owning 250 acres of land, was a Revolutionary soldier, and died with his daughter in Jackson many years ago. Letham French, Joseph P. Martin and Samuel Shute all lived at Sandpoint. Mr. French was a grandfather of Mrs. Loomis Eames of Seaport. Mr. Martin was for many years town clerk of Prospect, a Revolutionary soldier, and wrote a history of that war.

THE HOUSE FLY.

The New York Merchant's association has lately issued a pamphlet entitled, "The House Fly at the Bar," which places the little pest on trial, and convicts it by a vast majority of evidence. The evidence is in the form of communications from the leading health authorities and boards of health of the country. It is almost universally admitted that flies are responsible for the spread of typhoid fever to a great extent. Nearly every authority which has made investigation places the blame wholly, or in part, on the fly; the exceptions being those which could be traced directly to a contaminated water supply. So it is simply a matter of pure water and dodging flies, if one would escape typhoid. It is further shown beyond doubt that the fly deals in other disease germs, including tuberculosis, and cholera infantum. An army doctor offers evidence to show that the fly was more deadly to the American army in the Spanish-American war than the bullets of the enemy.

It is also shown that the knowledge of the fly's capacity for evil is now pretty generally understood. Boards of health in nearly all the cities represented in the volume have taken steps to check the breeding of flies, and to protect the people and their food from its disastrous visitations. It is shown that a single fly may carry over 6,000,000 disease germs, and that the fly has a habit of hunting up the filth where disease breeds, and carrying the germs on its visits to homes where it is admitted.

The Chicago department of health has adopted a set of rules which may be followed in a small town, or even in the country, and which will greatly lessen the number of flies, and the danger therefrom. The rules are as follows:

Screen all food and keep flies away from it. Keep the streets clean. Keep stable manure—breeding place for flies—in a vault or pit, or screened inclosure, and sprinkle its surface with chloride of lime.

Quickly cover up food after a meal, and bury or burn table refuse.

Keep damp cloths near meat dishes, milk jugs, and other food receptacles. Burn pyrethrum powder in the house. It will kill most of the flies, and those it does not will fall stunned, when they may be swept up and burned. Sticky fly-papers are a second-rate palliative.

Remember that the exposure of any kind of refuse near a dwelling furnishes a breeding place for flies, and if food is exposed, the flies will deposit germs upon it.

Paste these rules up where you will see them as often as you see a fly, and remember it is a part of your duty to yourself, as well as the community, to assist in the fight.

Memorial Day at Portland.

All of the troops available at the different military posts in the Portland district, including the Second Artillery band, under command of Col. A. V. White, will take part in the Memorial day parade in Portland. There will be probably 1000 men in line from the forts. The commander of Rosworth Post, G. A. R., requested Col. White to allow the troops to participate in the parade and he kindly agreed to send as many men as could be gathered.

MAINE "BLUE LAWS."

The following three sections embody the "Blue Laws" of Maine. The phraseology and the great prominence given innholders, shows the laws to have been enacted in the days when "Taverns" were the chief resort of the tipplers, and large factories, railroads and other kinds of business institutions were unknown.

Sec. 25. Whoever, on the Lord's Day, keeps open his shop, workhouse, warehouse or place of business, travels, or does any work, labor or business on that day, except works of necessity or charity; uses any sport, game or recreation; or is present at any dancing, public diversion, show or entertainment, encouraging the same, shall be punished by a fine not exceeding ten dollars.

Sec. 26. If an innholder or victualer, on the Lord's Day, suffers any person, except travelers, strangers or lodgers, to abide in his house, yard or field, drinking or spending their time idly, at play or doing any secular business, except works of charity or necessity, he shall be punished by a fine not exceeding four dollars for each person thus suffered to abide; and if after conviction he is again guilty, by a fine not exceeding ten dollars for each offense; and upon a third conviction, he shall also be incapable of holding any license; and every person so abiding shall be fined not exceeding four dollars for each offense.

Sec. 27. The Lord's Day includes the time between twelve o'clock on Saturday night and twelve o'clock on Sunday night.

Sec. 29. Any person may prosecute for all offenses described in sections twenty-two, twenty-five and twenty-six, at any time within six months after the commission thereof.

A careful reading of the law shows that it was aimed at the inns, and had for its chief object the prevention of Sunday carousing, for in those early days there could have been no disposition on the part of the store keepers to conduct business on Sunday, and no demand for open stores by the people.

The introduction of the word "necessity," in speaking of work seems to furnish the "joker" in the law that enables the mills and factories to have certain labor performed in them and for them on Sunday.

As to railroads and Sunday excursions, the former were unknown to the framers of the law, and the prohibition of travel covers the latter. It would seem that the latitude allowed judges in Maine is sufficient to make the law of no effect, providing popular sentiment demanded and judges acquiesced.

A PICTURE-PUZZLE VICTIM.

These things set me perfectly crazy! Oh, where is that left knee of his? For goodness' sake, don't push me, Maisie. I'm shaky enough as it is. Don't look at me! That makes me nervous. I know you are standing behind! In future, dear Heaven, preserve us from fads of this kind!

Now this is the fat lady's forehead. Oh, is it the grandfather's nose? Why, it doesn't fit either! how horrid! I'm sure I don't know where it goes. I believe it's the hand of the baby. But no, that would make him have three! It would fit in this place, maybe. Why, yes it is a tree!

Some secrets of practice revealing. I've learned a few tricks of the trade; The tints of the wall, floor and ceiling Are always of similar shade. If you find a straw hat trimmed with grasses, You may make up your mind it's not that; It's a broom—or a jug of molasses.— But never a hat!

Oh, where is that funny-shaped drab bit? I had it a moment ago; I thought it was part of a rabbit.— It's the roof of the distant chateau. Now, is this a calico curtain, Or the old fellow's legs that are crossed? Of one thing I'm perfectly certain! Some pieces are lost!

Oh, me! I must rest for a minute.— Why, there is that yellow bowl now! How lovely the nosegay fits in it.— And I thought all the while 'twas a cow! Well, certainly her cheek is missing. From her forehead right down to her chin! Oh no, here's the young man that's kissing; His face just fits in!

With this ruler I'll push it compactly; Now,—where is that long, roundish bit, Shaped somewhat, although not exactly, Like a wheelbarrow, backward and split? Yes, that is the end of his truncheon! Oh! the glands in the back of my neck! But if I get through this by luncheon, I don't care a speck! —Carolyn Wells, in Harper's Weekly.

WHERE THE PEOPLE LIVE.

About One-Third of Our Population is in the 13 Original States.

Of the 88,000,000 people in the United States, Alaska included, about one-third live in the 13 original States, according to a statistical abstract of the United States issued by the bureau of statistics of the department of commerce and labor. Another third live in the States created from the territory ceded to the common union by the original States, and the remaining third in the area added by purchase or annexation.

While a large share of the territory in the United States has come under a cultivation or individual ownership, the figures show that in 1908, there were 754,895,000 acres of unappropriated and unreserved land, of which almost one half was in Alaska.

The total number of immigrants into the country since 1820, the year of earliest record, exceeds 25,000,000. During the fiscal years 1905, 1906, 1907 the number averaged more than 1,000,000 a year. In 1900, the date of the last census, the total number of persons of foreign birth living in the country was 10,460,000 which was 13.7 per cent of the total population. The receipts of the post office department show an increase from about $1,000,000 in 1920, to $191,500,000 in 1908. The number of letters and post cards sent through the postal system of the United States is given as 6,466,000,000 in 1907 as against 3,359,000,000 by the postal system of the United Kingdom.

A New Maine Industry.

Southwest Harbor plans a new industry during the coming summer in a revival of whale fishing. Whales are said to be plentiful off Mount Desert Rock and vicinity, and John Stanley and sons have bought the steam yacht Princess from the Edwin Morey estate and will utilize her for a whaling craft during the coming summer. The Princess is a very fast, with 215 horse power, and is 72 feet long. Bomb guns will be fitted on her decks and she will go after the whales in dead earnest. Each finny monster is worth something like $500, and after he is captured, he will be towed to Southwest Harbor, to go the way of all dead whales. The prospect for the whales this summer is by no means cheerful.

Wonder if President Taft is receiving marked copies of the Lewiston Sun, telling him what kind of a tariff would suit
the editor of that paper and how to run
the government in general.

An analysis of the license vote in Massachusetts shows a net gain of 40,000 votes for no license in three years and a gain of three cities and one town in the last election.

The southern mackerel fishery has been a complete failure this year, entailing a heavy loss on the fishermen.
The Penobscot river salmon fishing has also been a failure thus far, less than half a dozen fish having been taken. The cold weather and continued northeast winds no doubt have affected the run of salmon, but the absence of mackerel
from the usual waters at this season remains unaccounted for.

Practically all of the leading magazines
and many of the weeklies refuse to publish liquor advertisements. That policy was adopted by The Journal many years ago, when under the management of William H. Simpson, and such advertisement was not then illegal in this State.
A like stand was taken at the same time
against lottery advertising, now forbidden by law. There is no law against advertising fake schemes, but they find no place in The Journal.

Brady Elder sold his holdings in Caribou and migrated to Pennsylvania, bought a farm in Punxsutawney and settled down to farming. The local newspaper, the Punxsutawney Spirit, thereupon exults greatly, and says: "Farming is not what it used to be in Maine.
Things are a bit slow up there, anyway."
The first statement is correct. Farming is not what it used to be in Maine. It has greatly advanced in the past few years, and is rapidly advancing. But let the Aroostook Republican of Caribou
tell the story. It says:

Pennsylvania is a big State, containing 45,000 square miles as compared with 33,000 for Maine and 6,400 for this country. It is capable of creating considerable wealth from its mines, etc., to say nothing of its having a government mint at Philadelphia; but when it comes right down to the art of farming as compared with Aroostook, it simply isn't in it to any greater degree than President
Castro was as compared to President Roosevelt. Why, there isn't a farm big enough in the whole Keystone State to make a fair-sized garden patch for one of our enterprising husbandmen. One of our farmers could scrape off more genuine, rich soil from one of his sulky plows than can be found in any garden in Jefferson county, Penn. In the raising of potatoes, hay, grain, etc., Aroostook could give the residents of the Keystone State the right bower and joker and then sue them; where they raise pecks of potatoes we raise barrels; where they raise a ton of hay, we grow two.

Mr. Duntun's reference in his address of welcome to the Boston visitors to the days when communication with Boston was by sailing packets recalls the further fact that in the olden times that was the only communication with Castine. Capt.
Isaiah Skinner, who died in Castine in August, 1897, aged 72 years, had run a packet between Belfast and Castine for 33 years. In those days there was much visiting between the two places and business relations were intimate. Castine was then an important business center, with vessels engaged in the foreign trade. The families who used to visit back and forth have pretty much died out now, but Castine still has its attractions for the later generations of our people, as it does for visitors from out of the State. Aside from its natural beauties it is a place of much historic interest, and has long been the home of intelligent and refined people. At the time when the steamer May Queen was running between Belfast and Castine an illustrated article on Castine appeared in Harper's Monthly, one of the pictures showing a garret filled with old-fashioned furniture, etc. One day there was an excursion to Castine from Belfast and at least half a dozen members of the party had copies of the magazine, and a lady was heard to declare that she was determined to see that garret. On the return trip she was asked as to what success
she had in her quest, and she said that she had visited the garret, and told at length of the quaint things seen there.
But the curios brought home from foreign voyages, the heirlooms handed down from generation to generation, are not for the excursionist or transient visitor.
While Castine has become a fashionable summer resort, with handsome cottages along its water front and clustered about Dice's Head, a most picturesque place,
the remaining descendants of the old families lead a quiet, retired life in their tree-embowered homes, where one has glimpses of trailing vines, trim gardens, flowers and shrubs. In the summer time
the steamer Golden Rod gives opportunity to Castine people to spend four or five hours in Belfast, and to Belfast people an equal time in Castine, and the sail across the bay is very enjoyable on a warm day. On her trip to Belfast in the afternoon the Golden Rod usually brings over a score or so of Castine's summer visitors, who have about an hour to spend here, which they utilize in driving about the city or in shopping, arriving at Cas-tine on their return in time for supper.
Perhaps it should be added that the fare is so reasonable that anybody and everybody can afford to make the trip.

STOCKTON SPRINGS.

Mr. E. H. Doyle left Monday for Aroostook county on business, and will be absent several days.

Mr. Charles McGregor opened his business last Thursday in the second tenement of the Sprague block, Main street.

Miss Auline Crooker arrived last Thursday from West Upton, Mass., and is the guest of her cousin, Mrs. Carrie A. Gardner.

The automobiles, harbingers of summer, are putting in an occasional appearance, the first one passing through the village last Friday.

Mrs. James Treat was able to attend church last Sunday—her first appearance since her recent illness. We were glad to see her out again.

Mrs. H. S. Moulton and daughter, Mrs. Annie
M. Verrill, spent last Thursday and Friday at Sandpoint the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Black.

Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Glidden of Searsport were in town May 12th, to attend the burial services of Mrs. A. P. Goodhue, a great-aunt of Mr. Glidden.

Mr. A. J. Crooker and son of Winterport were here May 12th to attend the funeral of his sister, Mrs. Albion P. Goodhue. They returned the same day.

Capt. L. M. Partridge and daughter, Miss Leora, have sufficiently recovered from their recent sickness to walk down town. Mrs. P.
is still confined to the house.

The Current Events Club has decided to put an insurance upon the books in its library, indicated in the fancy goods store of Mr. W. F.
Trundy, corner Main and Church streets.

The Ladies' Aid Society will meet this Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. James Treat, socially. Next week, May 27th, it will be entertained by Miss Mabel F. Simmons, in regular session, for sewing.

Mr. Earle Gardner, who came from Boston
to be present at the funeral of Mrs. A. P.
Goodhue, May 12th, remained with his mother, Mrs. Carrie A. Gardner, until Saturday, taking the boat that afternoon for home.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell P. Goodhue arrived from Boston May 11th, called here by the decease of their mother, Mrs. Albion P. Goodhue.
They returned, by steamer, Thursday afternoon, business demanding Mr. G.'s attention.
They will be in town later for some weeks.

Alex. Staples, formerly of Cape Jellison, died
May 11th at the Insane Hospital in Augusta.
The remains were brought here for interment in the Cape Jellison cemetery after funeral services at the home of his nephew, Mr.
William Ladd, conducted by Rev. H. E. Rouillard, last Thursday afternoon.

Last week gave us fine weather. Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday were beautiful days. The present week opened with a charming Sunday morning, but the wind swinging to the south, the afternoon brought a gentle rain. Monday dawned grey;
but cleared toward noon, giving us a beautiful,
mild afternoon, quite summer-like. Everyone having a garden (flower or vegetable) to make, is busy now-a-days. Peas and potatoes are mostly planted.

Mrs. Everett Staples, Sylvan street, suffered a severe ill turn last Saturday morning and Dr. Stevens was with her for two hours. Later
Dr. S. and Dr. Britto held a consultation upon her case. We are glad to be able to report her more comfortable, since resting well Saturday night, and hope for continued improvement.
Her sister, Mrs. Sarah Snell, who is visiting here when the illness came on, is still with her and Miss Edna Crooker is there as usual.

Friday evening the parish meeting of the Universalist society was held in the church in response to the call of the parish committee, to consider the resignation tendered by Rev. H.
E. Rouillard the Sunday before. In accordance with the call, the meeting was held in the residence of Mr. R. E. Stevens, and the resignation and the committee was instructed to take steps to secure a suitable successor to fill the pulpit on Mr. R.'s departure, sometime in June. It was also voted to give a farewell reception to the pastor and his wife, the resignation and the committee was instructed to place being left to the committee to decide.

Sch. Atlanta arrived at Cape Jellison dock
May 8th with a cargo of lime. Sch. Irene Meservy arrived May 9th, light, to load lumber for New York. May 10th sch. American Team came in, light, to load lumber for New York.
May 12th sch. Caroline Kriescher arrived with a cargo of bricks for the cannery factory at Lower Brook. Sch. Lizzie Lane arrived May 13th to load lumber for New York. May 16th
sch. Sarah A. Blaisdell arrived, light, to take a cargo of lumber to New York. May 12th the Atlanta sailed from Cape Jellison for Sandpoint and the steamer Hector sailed light for Sabine, Texas, having brought a load of sulphur. The 14th of May the Caroline Kriescher sailed for Penobscot.

Last Thursday evening the 2-act comedy,
"Mr. Bob," was presented in Denlow Hall very acceptably by "The Amateur Dramatic Club" of Park with the following cast of characters:

Warren A. Griffin
Robert Brown, Ernest P. Staples
Jenkins, the butler, Melvin L. Park
Rebecca Luke, Miss Lillian Park
Miss Elizabeth Rogers, Miss Elizabeth Park
Marion Bryant, Miss Eugenie Kneeland
Pattie, the maid, Miss Josephine Davis
The drama was followed by a social dance with good music from Searsport. A six-piece orchestra furnished music before and after the play and between the acts.

OBITUARY. May 9, 1909. Mrs. Catharine C.
Goodhue, wife of Master Albion P. Goodhue, quietly passed to the spirit life after long suffering, due to general debility, consequent upon advanced age—long years of active well doing and great usefulness. Mrs. G. was born April 17, 1822, the daughter of the late Sebra
and Ruth (Staples) Crooker, in Frankfort,
where her parents were temporarily living,
while her father superintended the building of vessels there. She became the wife of Capt.
Joseph Harriman, September 18, 1842, in the family home, in the town of Prospect, now Stockton Springs. One son, Hiram Crooker Harriman, blessed this union. He was born September 24, 1843. With her infant in her arms, she became a widow. Capt. H.'s vessel was lost with all on board, presumably, off
the coast of South Carolina, in a terrible storm.
A firm Universalist she nobly faced the almost crushing ordeal, saying bravely in her bleeding heart:
"God watches; and thou wilt have sun,
When clouds of grief thy perfect work have done."
She and child lived with her parents until she married Mr. Albion P. Goodhue, November 16, 1851, and with whom she lived, in most congenial wedlock, for more than 57 years. Two children, Carrie A. (now Mrs. A. M. Gardner), and Russell P. (now of Boston) cheered their home, beside her older son, who knew no lack of paternal affection in the stepfather, who faithfully filled a parent's place. In the awful tragedy of the Civil War, when love of country fired young and old alike, her eldest son, with zeal beyond his years, volunteered in response to President Lincoln's call for troops and heroically gave his life, a victim to the Peninsular Campaign, passing away, it was supposed,
while on the passage north, whither, in company with hundreds of sick, he was being carried to hospital. He never arrived. Again her loving heart was torn by weary waiting, anxiety and suspense; yet, with rare faith and undiminished patriotism, she prayed: "Thy will be done, O God save our Union." Few are called upon to twice sacrifice their dear ones in the dead way of never knowing their end. When approaching age to her parents called her she and her husband went into the old home to minister to their needs, and her brother and wife being taken away she took to her heart and home the four orphan children to rear as her own, faithfully discharging that duty.
Later, when Master Goodhue had erected a new home near her father's place she took her parents there and assiduously watched over and waited upon them through years of slow decline and wearing illness, until peace came to them. A woman of keen intelligence, rare judgment, great industry, unusual executive ability, deep sympathies and wise generosity,
she held the deepest esteem of all neighbors and friends. As her manifold duties were found time for much reading, and was an appreciative lover of poetry, which she aptly quoted. Whittier and Cowper were among her favorites. The Scriptures she knew most thoroughly, all dispensing all disagreeing sages beyond most persons outside the ministry. But her home was her chief delight and the inner world of her family (at times large) was her manifold sphere of action.
Her devotion to her husband and family was marked and untiring. As a daughter, wife, mother, friend and neighbor, she was an example of strong personality and true woman devoted to the highest ideals of earnest living. For several years her declining period has been tenderly nursed by her widowed daughter, Mrs. A. M. Gardner, who, since the decease of her husband, has managed her personal affairs hold as her own. Surely a good woman has gone from our midst into the glory of "The Great Beyond," in which she had an unwavering belief. To her sorrowing husband, son, daughter, brother, nieces and nephews, the community offers sympathy in this separation from their dear one, gone like the ripened grain—earth's work well done. The funeral services were held at her late home, Wednesday afternoon, May 12th, conducted by Rev. H.
E. Rouillard, pastor of the Universalist church,
in which she was always deeply interested.
The floral tributes were numerous and beautifully testifying to the love that family and friends entertained for the one gone from mortal to immortal duties.
"To live in hearts we leave Behind, is not to die."
"The paradise men seek, the city bright
That gleams beyond the stars, for longing eyes,
Is only human goodness in the skies;
Earth's deeds, well done, glow into heavenly light."

The Churches.

Endeavor Society at 6.30; topic, "Lessons from the Birds and Flowers," Luke 12:24-28. This will be a special union meeting with the Juniors. Evening worship at 7.30 with an address by the pastor. The public is cordially invited to attend all these services.

The special union service held last Sunday evening in the North Congregational church in the interest of the Laymen's Convention, now in session in Portland, was a unique and interesting event. The men in the audience were seated in the center of the church, and the clergymen of the city, with Mr. Orlando E.
Frost, the speaker of the evening, occupied seats in the pulpit. The North Church choir was in attendance and rendered appropriate selections and the duet "Exile's Song" by Mr.
Emory White and Mr. John Parker added much to the evening's service. The responsive reading was given by Rev. Arthur J. Roberts of the Baptist church, scripture reading by Rev. A. A. Smith of the Universalist church, prayers by Rev. A. E. Luce of the Methodist church and Rev. William Vaughan of the Trinity Reformed church, announcements by Rev. D. L. Wilson of the Congregational church, and the benediction by Rev. Adolph Rossbach of the First Parish (Unitarian) church. Mr. Orlando E. Frost gave an able and interesting address on men's work and held the closest attention of his audience throughout. He spoke of the need of the church for men, and of the opportunity for active service which should be given them. He also spoke most interestingly of the great work of the Y. M. C. A. and specific instances of the good done by that organization. He also gave a brief summary of the program of the convention in Portland which promised great things for those fortunate enough to be able to attend.

There was a very interesting service at the Methodist Episcopal church last Tuesday evening, a union meeting of the Junior and Senior Epworth Leagues. The program opened with singing "Onward Christian Soldiers," followed by Scripture reading by Miss Sanborn and a prayer by Rev. A. E. Luce. The officers of George Pratt chapter were then installed as follows: President, Miss Lena Sanborn; 1st vice president, Miss Ethel Frost; 2nd vice president, Miss Mildred Darby; 3rd vice pres-

League superintendent, Miss Lillian Spinney.
The K. O. K. A. Quartette then sang a selection; little Lillian Dexter recited, and Mrs.
Cleora H. Read sang a solo. The Junior chorus, accompanied by little Ruth Macomber, sang
"Holy, Holy, Holy." Two interesting papers were then read, "The Junior League of Yesterday," by Carrie Roberts, and "The

Nemo CORSETS COMFORT and CORRECT STYLE
FOR STOUT WOMEN

More than a million stout women know that the Nemo Self-Reducing Corset is the only corset that will reduce the abdomen with perfect comfort and hygienic safety.

Every woman who has worn it knows that the Nemo Self-Reducing Corset is superior to all others in comfort, style and durability—that it is an extraordinary value simply as a corset, saying nothing about its invaluable and exclusive special features.

Thousands of stout women who have imagined that they must have their corsets made to order are now saving half their money and enjoying greater comfort by wearing the famous Nemo Self-Reducing Corset.

312—For Tall Stout Figure; 320, same with Flatting-Back $3.00
314—For Short Stout Figure; 318, same with Flatting-Back
404—For Short Stout Figure; new Nemo Relief Bands $4.00
405—For Tall Stout Figure; long skirt, new Relief Bands

The Nemo Self-Reducing Corset reduces a stout woman's figure so effectively that her skirts have to be "taken in" from 3 to 4 inches. It "moulds in" and supports the abdomen, giving health and strength to women who are physically weak.

League of Today," by Florence Curtis. Following the reading seven young people were graduated from the Junior to the Senior League. They were Misses Evie Hall, Ruth Coombs, Ellen Marshall, Carrie Roberts
and Gladys Marshall, and Masters Tracy Elms and Chester Ross. After the graduation
there was a vocal solo by little Frances Macomber, a piano solo by Lillian Dexter, a duet by Tracy Elms and Chester Roberts, and a recitation by Miss Edna White. An enjoyable social followed the meeting, when games were played and delicious home-made candy was served. The vestry was elaborately decorated in the League colors, red and white, and looked most attractive. The chapter banner and those bearing the motto were effectively placed and representations of the League pin were used.

THE NEWS OF BELFAST.

Mr. O. E. Frost has placed an order for a new automobile.

Decorations have made their appearance—stars in a green firmament.

They swept through the streets in clouds last Saturday.

At the present time there are only three inmates of the County Jail, the smallest for several months.

The Merrill band will give a concert at the Lyceum Monday evening, May 24th. Admission 10 cents.

Mr. A. H. Allen has built a coal stage at Lewis and Hay Co. to replace the one destroyed a few weeks ago by a fire in the towing out.

A copy of last week's Journal was mailed to one of our Boston visitors. A Maine newspaper man says that that issue is his favorite of a county local paper.

The R. & A. railroad construction train in charge of Engineer Corbett and Conductor Corbett is waiting the road bed in the Frankfort area in good condition after the spring rains.

The three in Cold Fellows hall Friday evening were the auspices of Waldo lodge of Odd Fellows well attended and a very enjoyable affair. Keyes' orchestra furnished the music.

Belfast High was defeated in Bucksport last Saturday by the Seminary nine, the score 10-0. Next Saturday they will play the Seminary at the Congress street.

THE STANDARD OF THE WORLD

POOR'S MILLS. Mrs. O. A. Wade went to Boston on the boat Friday, en route for Hartford, Conn., where she will join her husband, Capt. Wade. Mrs. Nellie Kimball is at home from the hospital, and is gaining every day. Mina Jackson is caring for her. There will be a social and supper at the hall this, Thursday, evening. Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hartshorn and children and Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Hartshorn spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Roleron.

THE ELECTRIC ROAD TO CAMDEN. The Camden Herald of last week had this mention of "electric rail-road talk," of which something has been heard in this city of late. It has long been the settled conviction that it is only a question of time when this projected road will be built, and the indications are that the time is near at hand. The Herald says:

There is considerable electric rail-road talk in the air. Just what it may come to is not certain, but some of the large stockholders in the Rockland, Thomaston & Camden St. Ry. were here last week and we understand that they were looking into the situation. An electric road from here to Belfast has been talked of at times for several years and it begins to look as though something definite would be done in the near future. The plan talked of now is to run the road up to Lake Meganticook across the picturesque fang and then swing back to the coast beyond the mountain. Such a route would open up one of the most picturesque rides in New England. It would also make easily accessible many fine cottage lots around Lake Meganticook and in Lincolnville. We hope to see building operations begun by another year.

SHIPPING ITEMS. Schooner Young Brothers is loading ice on the Kennebec for New York. She was built at Belfast in 1890 by McDonald & Brown and was noted as a flyer in her day. To settle the estate of J. R. Baker, an old Boston ship chandler firm, the schooners Brookline and John Proctor, both three-masted, were sold at auction last week in East Boston. The Brookline, which was formerly the Charles E. Schmidt, was bid in by Boston men for $6500. The Proctor went for $3500. Schooner Charlotte T. Sibley has chartered to load out stone at Sullivan for Philadelphia. Schooner Jeremiah Smith has chartered to load ice from Fred Smith's ice-house, Crescent Beach, for City Island, N. Y. Schooner Wawonek is chartered to load coal at St. George, Staten Id., for Rockland, by the Eastern Steamship company. Capt. M. G. Dow, formerly of the barkentine Rebecca Crowell and schooner Northland, is to be master of the 1,800-ton schooner now building in the yard of Gardner G. Deering, Bath. Crowell & Thurlow of Boston have contracted to carry all the ice now in the houses at Sargentville to Hoboken at 70 cents a ton. Practically all their tonnage has coal charters for the season. The Portland schooner which has been receiving extensive repairs here will be launched from Gilchrist's marine railway the last of this week or first of next. It is expected another Portland schooner will take her place on the railway. Although the papers have not been passed George A. Gilchrist has completed negotiations for the three-masted schooner James Slater now at Port Jefferson, N. Y. The Slater is 266 tons net and was built at Port Jefferson in 1874. According to an official of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad, a large amount of lumber will be shipped from Aroostook county points to New York via the great terminals at Stockton Springs. He says the decline in the lumber business at Stockton was due to the poor condition of the New York market, as Boston lumber is not shipped that way.

STEAMER NOTES. Hereafter the Eastern Steamship Co. will collect storage for baggage after it has remained in the baggage room at the wharf for 24 hours. The rates are as follows: Second day of 24 hours or fraction thereof, 25 cents; for each successive day up to the 10th day, 10 cents; for 10 days to one month, $1; for each successive day in subsequent months, 10 cents a day, with a maximum of $1 a month. This new rule is in accordance with the instructions issued on page 2 of the local and interdivision tariff pamphlet No. 4, effective April 1, 1909. Perry Bros. of Rockland have bought the Portland tug-boat Cumberland, of 25 tons net, built at Philadelphia in 1868, formerly the L. A. Belknap. The name of Capt. Ben Arey's steamer has been changed from Perry V. to Anna Belle. Since last fall a pair of gulls have made their home in the harbor below the steamboat wharf just off the mouth of the sewer and may be seen there any time of day, regardless of wind or weather, not changing their position more than a few yards. Indeed, it is believed they do not leave their station day or night. No other gulls are allowed to invade their territory and if any approach they are driven off. The birds are well known on the boats and food is thrown to them as the steamers come to the landing. Steamer Ruth, which wintered at the railroad wharf, has been painted and put in condition for service. She is for sale or charter. Work on the steamboat wharf at Searsport will be completed in about a week and at Wintertown in about ten days. Work on the wharf at Northport Campground, now the property of the E. S. Co., began this week. J. F. Spellman, son of Bangor, has the contract. The new cherry blossom which gave no hint of the threatening down-pour which later materialized. Pink and white hearts formed the place cards, and the daintily set tables were arranged in the shape of a "T." The all-unexpected guest of the evening found her place and was seated before she discovered in front of her a miniature bride procession, a tiny bride, arrayed in white silk, with veil, orange blossoms and shower bouquet, and four bridesmaids daintily garbed in pink. The delicious supper included chicken, scalloped clams, salads, rolls, olives, coffee and cakes, and full justice was done by the merry company. After supper the guest of the evening was led to a cherry tree which had been shielded by a screen, and whose boughs bore strange fruit mingled with the blossoms. Pink and white packages of all shapes and sizes were there, and the amazed recipient bore an armful back to her place at the table to enjoy "Christmas all over again," as some one expressed it. The dainty packages contained treasures galore, which included handkerchiefs, tumbler and plate doilies, centerpieces, and a beautiful and elaborate Mexican work lunch cloth. Not to be forgotten, among the other things, also, was an envelope containing snap shots of many of the Guild members, and the promises of more, which the Guild president will hang to tensaciously until they have been fulfilled. The "shower," which was a complete surprise, despite the number concerned in its preparation, was almost in the nature of a deluge, and the lovely gifts themselves will always be treasured as an expression of the kindness and thought which prompted them. The remainder of the evening was spent delightfully, and needles and tongues flew. Plans for future Guild work were considered and several tempting invitations for future festivities were received.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS. Mason & Hall have the largest stock of agricultural machinery and implements in this city. They are agents for the International Harvester Co. and other well known companies and firms, buy direct from the manufacturers, and are in a position to meet any competition. Call and see them before buying. This firm also carries St. Louis Red Seal, Burgess & Forbes, Masury's Railroad lead and Devoe's lead and zinc paint. Just received one car of tile pipe. To obviate the necessity of making an agreement as to closing on the recurrence of each holiday, the grocers, marketmen and dry goods stores have come to an agreement, of which notice is given in our advertising columns. TWO HEAVY SHOWERS. The Bridgents held their last regular meeting for the season Wednesday evening, May 12th, at the home of Miss Katherine C. Quimby. Supper was served at 7 o'clock in the dining room, which was lighted with red and brass-shaded candles. The menu was a dainty one, and the place cards, which were the work of Mr. P. A. Sanborn, depicted tiny girls under huge umbrellas upon which the rain was pattering. The significance of the little pictures was not made known until the Club president was asked to serve from a covered silver dish which was set before her, and which revealed, instead of an addition to the menu, seven daintily wrapped and ribbon-tied packages, which were opened between courses by the lucky recipient. Each package contained a handsome embroidered and initialed guest-room towel, the work of the individual club members, and so completely surprised was the guest of honor, and so much delighted, that it was with difficulty she managed to maintain order during the business session that followed the evening's play. The final results for the winter were announced by the secretary, Miss L. Grace Chadwick, whose score led her nearest competitor by over a thousand, and who is the winner of the season's trophy, a festoon necklace set with jade and baroque pearls, which has been worn by the winner of the highest score each week during the winter. The reports of the secretary and treasurer were listened to with an interest which verged on amazement, and caused much comment among the members. They certainly had the rare merit of originality and were delivered very impressively. The club members are: Miss Florence E. Dunton, Miss Sara Edith West, Miss Margaret L. Keene, Miss Alice M. Nickerson, Miss Florence M. Hill, Miss Katherine C. Quimby, Miss Marguerite D. Pillsbury, president, and Miss L. Grace Chadwick, secretary and treasurer. Six o'clock Monday evening found a merry gathering of Guild members in the North Congregational church vestry, eagerly waiting a summons to the supper room, from which the tantalizing aroma of coffee floated up. Over thirty Guild members and a few invited friends answered the call, "Supper is ready," and trooped down to the daintily decorated room, bright with pink shaded lights, and gay with the pink cherry blossoms which gave no hint of the threatening down-pour which later materialized. Pink and white hearts formed the place cards, and the daintily set tables were arranged in the shape of a "T." The all-unexpected guest of the evening found her place and was seated before she discovered in front of her a miniature bride procession, a tiny bride, arrayed in white silk, with veil, orange blossoms and shower bouquet, and four bridesmaids daintily garbed in pink. THE NEW LOBSTER LAW. There were two amendments to the law relating to lobsters enacted at the last session of the legislature, the most essential being that concerning measurement. Section 17 of Chapter 41 reads as amended:

No person shall buy or sell, give away or expose for sale or possess for any purpose, any lobster less than four and three-fourths inches in length, alive or dead, cooked or uncooked, measured in manner as follows: Taking the length of the back of the lobster measured from the end of the bone of the nose to the center of the rear end of the body shell; and any lobster shorter than the prescribed length when caught shall be immediately liberated, alive at the risk and cost of the common carrier, under a penalty of one dollar for each lobster so caught, bought, sold, given away, or exposed for sale or in possession. The possession of mutilated lobsters, cooked or uncooked, shall be prima facie evidence that they are not of the required length. All lobsters or parts of lobsters sold for use in this State or for export therefrom must be sold and delivered in the shell under a penalty of twenty dollars for each offense, and whoever ships, transports, carries, buys, gives away, sells or exposes for sale lobster meat after the same shall have been taken from the shell shall be liable to a penalty of one dollar for each pound of meat so shipped, transported, carried, bought, given away, sold or exposed for sale. Any person or corporation in the business of a common carrier or transporter from place to place lobster meat after the same shall have been taken from the shell shall be liable to a penalty of fifty dollars for each conviction thereof. All lobster meat so illegally shipped, transported, carried, bought, given away, sold or exposed for sale shall be liable to seizure and may be confiscated. Nothing contained herein shall be held to prohibit the sale of lobsters that have been legally canned.

THE WALDO COUNTY FAIR. At a meeting of the Waldo County Agricultural Society May 13th plans were perfected in regard to the fair next September. The secretary was instructed to arrange for attractions for the heats and the program for the fair was made a committee on track and improvements of the buildings and stables. The premium list in the usual form will be distributed about the first of June. The amount of $1,400 will be offered, and the racing program is as follows:

First day, 2:15 class, trot and pace, $250; 2:29 class, trot and pace, $150.

Second day, 2:18 class, trot and pace, $175; 2:30 class, trot and pace, $100.

Third day, free-for-all, trot and pace, $300; 2:30 class, trot and pace, $125; 2:25 class, trot and pace, $150.

IMPROVEMENTS AT THE GIRLS' HOME. The Girls' Home on Northport avenue, maintained by the Children's Aid Society of Maine, and a State institution, is to be enlarged this season to meet an increasing demand for more room, the last legislature having made an appropriation for that purpose. The matter has been in the hands of a building committee, who secured plans from Miller &amp; Mayo of Portland, the architects who designed the building for the City National Bank of Belfast, now in course of erection. J. G. Aborn will be the contractor. The main portion of the present house will be left standing and the entire L, extending back some 69 feet, torn down. In its place will be built a wing and L according to the following specifications: Connection from main house to wing 12 by 26 feet, off which will be a porch 12x6 feet. In the connection will be the hallway leading to the wing, a vestibule, bathroom and lavatory. The wing will be 25x36 feet and contain a school exercise room 18x24 feet and dining hall 18x24 feet. The L, 16x32, will contain a kitchen 16x16, a butler's pantry, a store-room and back hall. The main house will be used for reception rooms on one side of the hallway and for matron's apartments on the other. The latter will include sitting room, bed room and private bath. The second story will contain a hallway, 7x12; a linen room, 10x4; four bed rooms, 12 feet five inches by 15 feet nine inches, and a toilet room, 8x12. The L will contain two rooms, 17x11 and one, 10.5x6.16. The wing will have roof with dormer windows in each end looking towards Northport and the city.

The Ladies of the G. A. R. desire a full attendance at their meeting next Tuesday to make arrangements for Memorial Day.

The next meeting of Seaside Chautauque Circle will be held with Mrs. E. P. Frost, High street, Monday afternoon, May 24th. The lesson will be from chapter twenty of European Literature, and chapter thirteen of the C. L. S. C. book: "Man and the Earth." Magazine topic, "Modern Dutch Painting." Roll-call, quotations from Ibsen.

The are lights in this city went out of commission last Saturday, and have been replaced by the new Tungsten light, of which it is said that, "the filaments made from this rare metal, tungsten, will not only give a pure white light closely allied to actual sunlight, but will give the same quantity of light as the old carbon filament lamp for one-third the current." A. A. Howes & Co. have had six of these lights installed in their store and their superiority over the arc light formerly used is readily seen.

The Ladies Aid of the Universalist church will meet this, Thursday, afternoon, with Mrs. Edmund Wilson, Congress street.

Song birds are reported as unusually numerous this spring, both in number and in varieties. This is good news to the nature lover. There is a law which forbids the killing of these birds, which should be rigidly enforced.

Miss Mary Jackson of Woodland, California, in renewing her subscription to The Journal says: "I enjoy every issue and am often impatient for its coming. I get it on Monday usually, sometimes on Tuesday, and when it comes later I get worried for fear I shall not get it. I know it is sent all right."

The Skipper and the Girl.

"I asked you to come in and see me this morning," said Mr. Templeton of Templeton Brothers & Co., "in order to let you know that you will take on passengers on the Storm King when you sail next Thursday. My daughter and my sister wish to visit Australia, so you will take them under your care," went on Mr. Templeton. "They will sign articles as nurse and assistant nurse so as to conform with Board of Trade ruling. I have given instructions for the extra cabins to be done up. Mr. Cleet will also cross with you. Mr. Cleet will sign on as steward."

It is doubtless generally known that a cargo steamer may not carry passengers. But the owners manage to avoid the Board of Trade ruling by allowing people to sign articles for some fancy job which they will never perform.

Although Captain Richard Gray had not expressed disapproval of the fact of the junior partner being a passenger in his ship, he felt very angry. In common with other masters and mates he cherished a profound dislike and contempt for Mr. Cleet.

The latter was one of those egotistical gentlemen who can always put everybody right. He always knew more than anyone else about every subject that was mentioned in his presence.

At sea one would have expected that Mr. Cleet's objectionable ways would be held under check, but the junior partner remained his own lordly self. He criticized the sailors' methods and issued orders, until eventually the boatswain, who had sailed under Captain Gray for several years, asked the master whose orders he was to take.

"Mr. Cleet is one of the partners, Jackson," the master replied, "and as such you must treat him respectfully, but he has no power to issue orders. Recollect that, please."

Jackson recollected it with all the pleasure in the world and he communicated the skipper's remark to the men. The latter received it with rapture, for they hated Cleet even more fervently than they hated foreign sailors in a British ship.

"Here, you," cried Cleet one morning, imperiously addressing a sailor and pointing to a coil of rope. "Just you shift that and keep things shipshape."

The A. B. stared at the junior partner and then turned to the officer of the watch, a grizzled veteran of some fifty years.

"Mr. Cleet wants this moved, sir," he said.

"The rope must remain where it is, Brown," responded the mate briefly, and both men continued their work without any further attention to Cleet.

The junior partner bristled, and striding as quickly as his stumpy legs would allow, began to ascend the ladder to the bridge.

"Please keep on deck, sir," said the mate.

"Passengers are not allowed on the bridge."

"Do you know who you are talking to," cried Cleet, his face crimson.

"I know my orders, sir," replied the mate briefly. "If you have any complaint to make, please make it to the captain."

At this moment Captain Gray came on deck in company with Molly Templeton.

"I have been insulted, captain," bellowed Cleet furiously.

"Indeed, who has insulted you?" asked Gray quietly.

The junior partner detailed the episode of the coil of rope and the mate's refusal to allow him on the bridge.

"Mr. Herbert—that was the mate—'was quite right in preventing you from going on the bridge,'" answered Gray.

"What, sir?" On my own ship I shall do as I like," cried Cleet.

"I must ask you to remember that I am in charge of this vessel," said Gray sternly, "and my orders must be obeyed. Now, Mr. Herbert, what about that rope?"

"It is required there, sir."

"That's all right then. Have you any further complaints, Mr. Cleet?"

"You will hear more of this Captain Gray," Cleet snarled, turning on his heel and joining Miss Templeton. But that young lady was decidedly cool, and Cleet did not enjoy himself a little bit.

The men continued their work with satisfied smiles. They each registered another mark to Captain Dick Gray's credit, though the score was long enough already. Every man on board had an affection for their big limbed skipper, they could see justice, maybe stern, yet always right, in his steadfast blue eyes.

At the time of this writing Captain Gray was about thirty-five years of age and unmarried. He had held a master's certificate for many years, and was as popular with his owners as with his men. Indeed, his family had always been friendly with the Templetons and had grown up with them.

Finding the demeanor of pretty Molly Templeton not to his liking after his interview with Capt. Gray, Cleet meandered below and began to make himself objectionable to the engineers.

He criticized their methods and remarked that the engines were dirty. This latter was as deadly an insult as he could utter, and the chief engineer, who had never anything on earth even better than whisky—and tended them like a fond mother, turned on him fiercely.

"If your ugly face was as clean as my engines you'd be much improved," he growled. "Now, then, take your interfering nose away or I'll make it more crooked than it is."

"What?" bellowed Cleet. "Do you know I'm one of the owners?"

"I don't care if you're the Emperor of Germany," shouted the chief, "but I know that I'll turn the hose on you if you don't shift mighty quick. Here, Macdonald, couple on the hose and give it to me."

The chief's orders were obeyed with such alacrity that Cleet bolted, furiously vowing vengeance.

He passed the rest of the day wallowing in rage. Never had he been so insulted—that was the way he chose to put it though the correct way would have been to say that he had never kept in his place so much before.

After dinner he retired to his cabin to meditate on his wrongs. He was aroused by a knock at the door. Opening it he saw a sailor.

"Cap'n wants you to go to his cabin, sir," said the man, reluctantly touching his cap.

"Tell the captain if he wants to see me he can come here—tell him that."

The sailor departed with his message, but presently returned.

"Cap'n says you are to go sir," he said.

"I refuse."

"If you don't, sir, cap'n says I'm to take you."

"What?"

The brawny sailor's face wore a pleased smile and his great hands itched. Cleet stared at him for a moment, then decided to obey the captain, much to the sailor's annoyance.

"I'd like to know who you think you are?" he asked fiercely when he stood in

Answer This Question

When shown positive and reliable proof that a certain remedy had cured numerous cases of female ills, wouldn't any sensible woman conclude that the same remedy would also benefit her if suffering with the same trouble?

Here are two letters which prove the efficiency of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Red Banks, Miss.—"Words are inadequate to express what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from a female disease and weakness which the doctors said was caused by a fibroid tumor, and I commenced to think there was no help for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me a well woman after all other means had failed. My friends are all asking what has helped me so much, and I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Willie Edwards.

Hampstead, Maryland.—"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was weak and nervous, and could not be on my feet half a day without suffering. The doctors told me I never would be well without an operation, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done more for me than all the doctors, and I hope this valuable medicine may come into the hands of many more suffering women."—Mrs. Joseph H. Dandy.

We will pay a handsome reward to any person who will prove to us that these letters are not genuine and truthful—or that either of these women were paid in any way for their testimonials, or that the letters are published without their permission, or that the original letter from each did not come to us entirely unsolicited.

What more proof can any one ask?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No sick woman does justice to herself who will not try this famous medicine. Made exclusively from roots and herbs, and has thousands of cures to its credit.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health free of charge. Address Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass.

Captain Gray's cabin. "How dare you issue orders to me?"

"While you are on this ship, sir, you must obey orders the same as anyone else," was the stern reply. "That is what I want to see you about. I will not have this interference with my men. You can do as you please on shore, but at sea it is different matter."

"Be careful how you speak to me, Captain Gray," snarled Cleet.

"You have signed articles on this vessel as a steward, Mr. Cleet," said the captain calmly, disdaining the junior partner's outburst, "and in future, while you are on my ship, you will act as steward."

"What?" gasped Cleet, hardly able to believe his ears.

Captain Gray repeated his remark.

"How dare you insult me so?" shouted Cleet. "I will do nothing of the sort."

"You will either do that, or I'll put you in irons for mutiny. I've had enough of you, Mr. Cleet. I don't care what you do on shore, but while you are on my ship you will do as I tell you. Now, then, which is it to be, work or irons?"

"Neither!" shouted Cleet. I am your employer—I will take away your office; I will make the first mate captain."

"Don't be silly, Mr. Cleet," began the skipper, but the infuriated junior partner glared on the door and was bawling for the first mate. That officer happened to be in hearing, and he came to the cabin.

"I have degraded Gray," cried Cleet. "I order you to take command."

"Can't take orders at sea, except from the captain," replied the mate.

The junior partner nearly had a fit. "This is mutiny!" he gasped.

"It will be if you don't obey orders," said Captain Gray. "Mr. Herbert, have the purser sent in, will you?"

Cleet continued to storm, but the captain took no notice of him. Presently the purser entered.

"Mr. Pemberton," said the master, "Mr. Cleet will take up his duties under you as steward."

"Are you mad?" cried the junior partner. "Do you mean it?"

"I always say what I mean," said the skipper.

Cleet glared from one to the other in amazed wrath. He could hardly contain himself as he mentally reviewed the situation. But at length, after a series of shifty glances at the master's stern face, he made up his mind.

All through the remainder of the voyage Cleet went about with a face as black as thunder. The purser stood no nonsense, he was secure in having his orders from the captain.

At length Australia was sighted. Cleet, who was off duty, was on deck, glaring furiously at the smudge on the horizon. On the after-deck stood Captain Gray and Molly Templeton. Cleet glared toward them with a scowl on his face.

"When we make port I shall cable for your discharge," said Cleet. "I shall make a full report of your insolent behavior."

"I don't think I should trouble if I were you, Mr. Cleet," said Molly sweetly. "And why not, pray?" demanded the junior partner.

"Because I am going to write as well. I think father will take my word before yours. Besides, he won't like to hear anything unpleasant of his future son-in-law."—Pearson's Weekly.

A $1,500,000 Cargo.

What is believed to be the largest cargo ever brought to Boston from Germany arrived May 12th by the German steamer Bosnia, Capt. Schmidt, from Hamburg. More than 9300 tons of freight was stowed in her cavernous holds, and her draught was so great that she was compelled to remain anchored outside Boston light until nearly high water before it was deemed safe to bring her up to her berth at Mystic wharf.

Hundreds of tons of toys, musical instruments, earthenware, German china, drugs, gin and cake goods filled one section of the freighter. There was a big consignment of expensive ladies' hosiery, sent here in anticipation of the increase in duties. She also brought 19,994 bags of raw sugar, 1000 cases of cube sugar, 3800 bags of potash, 3500 bales of wool pulp, 276 bags of infusorial earth, and consignments of machinery and other merchandise. It is estimated that the cargo is worth $1,500,000.

MONROE.

The baccalaureate sermon delivered June 9th by Rev. C. H. McElhinney was a very able one. He gave an interesting talk to the High school. The pleasing manner in which he addressed them, and the kindly advice and encouragement he gave them when they are to go out in the world, will long remain in their memory. His text was, "Learn to do well." The church was prettily decorated for the occasion and the choir rendered some very pretty selections. The Senior class of Monroe High school had their graduation May 13th. It was a fine evening and the town hall was crowded. The class consisted of nine, seven girls and two boys. The hall was decorated in an appropriate manner with a deep background of green. Over the stage were the figures 1909. There were potted plants in profusion and the hall was lavishly trimmed with the class colors, pink and white. The class motto was Excellence. The salutatory was given by Clarence Dickery, history by Mildred Emery; essay, Fall of Carthage, by George Maddox; prophecy by Beatrice Billings; essay, Preservation of Maine Forests, by Lucia Ide; presentation of gifts by Gladys Bartlett; essay, "Where There's a Will There's a Way," by Janet Fairbanks; valedictory by Ethel Littlefield. Will Jones of Brooks presided at the piano and Mr. Jones sang one fine selection. Everything passed off finely. The scholars did much credit to their four years' training by Mr. Fred Nickerson, and much credit to themselves. Mr. Felker distributed the diplomas as the class marched around the stage. It is hoped that the Monroe High school will long continue and flourish as it has in the past. The annual meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held with Lora Chase May 7th and the following officers were chosen for the ensuing year: Pres., Miss S. A. Mansur; First Vice Pres., Mrs. Fannie Shields; Second Vice Pres., Mrs. Della Nealey; Recording Secy., Mrs. Lora Chase; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Lizzie Haskell; Treasurer, Miss Julia White. A tribute of love was paid to the past President who had served so loyally and faithfully for four years and the best wishes of the Union go with her in her poor health. The next meeting will be with Annie Conant May 21st. Summer Stevens is building a new house. Horses are very high and scarce in this section this spring. . . . Herbert Littlefield has taken the contract to build the new road laid out by the county commissioners last fall, from the Jackson road across to the Brooks road, and will begin work this week. . . . Henry Butler, who has been in such poor health for a long time, died last week. He was alone in the world with no one to care for him. . . . About every farmer in town will plant from 4 to 10 acres of potatoes this year. . . . May 14th the graduating class of the Monroe High school gave a free reception and dance in the Town Hall. A large crowd was present. Cobb's orchestra furnished music. . . . Miss Anna L. Wildes of Belfast is visiting her home here. . . . Mrs. Fred Cunningham, who has had a long sickness, is able to ride out. Her many friends are pleased at her recovery. . . . Wilder Parker is gaining. . . . Mrs. Almida Bowen will begin repairs on her house and add a new L this week.

SEARSMONT.

The Masons took charge of the body of Mr. Gardiner Ripley—whose sudden death shocked the entire community—until the arrival of the son from Boston. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon, May 13th, and was largely attended. Rev. C. H. Bryant held a brief service at the home and the committal service of the Methodist Episcopal church was pronounced at the grave. The funeral was held in the community. The floral emblems were choice, and were carried by T. P. Moody and E. S. Wing. . . . John Bryant is giving his buildings a fresh coat of paint. . . . The parsonage is now connected with the outside world by telephone. . . . J. F. Marden is building an auto house. . . . Mrs. H. R. Knight and her husband have gone to East Corinth to join her husband.

SWANVILLE CENTER.

Mrs. Allen is at work for Mrs. Lewis Murphy. . . . Charlie Riley is at work for Joseph Patten for the summer. . . . Mrs. Walter Evans is quite sick and is confined to her bed. . . . David Wingate of Monroe was the guest of her cousin, Mrs. H. P. White, recently. . . . Oscar Dow is out again. He has been sick two weeks with the grip. . . . Herbert York has had a stroke of paralysis and is very low. . . . There is to be a dance at Comet Grange hall, May 22nd. Good music will be furnished and cake and coffee will be served. . . . Hermon Batchelder has not been well of late. He has overworked. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Gray were ill last week with the prevailing epidemic. . . . A nice time was enjoyed by all who attended the dance at Comet Grange hall and a fine supper was furnished. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Clark Marden of Brewer have returned home after visiting their children in town. . . . Wm. Clements visited in Monroe Wednesday. . . . Eugene Jennys arrived home for a visit last Saturday. . . . Mrs. Elwyn Dickey of Monroe spent the week-end with her mother and sister, Mrs. Watson Robertson and Mrs. Walter Evans. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Murphy have lost their baby. It had adenoids and got a heavy cold so it could not breathe through its head. It is very sad, as Mrs. Murphy is in poor health. Their friends extend sympathy to them. . . . Miss Ruth Marden is better than she has been for several weeks and is able to take automobile rides. . . . Mrs. Martin Robertson is sick with the grip. . . . Mrs. Charles Curtis is in poor health. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Parsons remain about the same; both are very ill. . . . Mr. and Mrs. E. Clements and three children of Searsport visited here, Mrs. H. P. White, last Sunday. . . . Willis Briggs has bought the Herbert Cunningham house and will soon take possession. . . . Charles Marr's two little daughters had a hen that an uncle bought in Portland and sent to them. She is a very small hen, but of high blood and is a great pet. This hen was sitting on four eggs and but a short distance from her was a hen's nest that Mrs. Caroline Marr's cat had appropriated for herself and two baby kittens. The second morning the mother cat acted strangely and seemed to be in trouble and Mrs. Marr went to the barn to investigate and found the little hen mothering the two kittens and her eggs all cold.

FREEDOM.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Murch have moved into Chas. Sampson's upper rent. . . . One of the smartest little fellows in the village is master Harding Bryant. He is almost 24 years old and he can tell you his name and age and what town he lives in, what State and the capital of the State. . . . Miss Minnie Webb was in Belfast May 14th. . . . Benjamin Libby called on friends in the village May 14th. . . . John Taylor was the lowest bidder for the contract for shingling the church, and will do the work. . . . The grass on the lawns in the village is looking quite green and the shade trees are beginning to put forth their foliage, but it is so cold and cloudy they progress very slowly. It does not look now though the last Sunday in May would be a white Sunday. . . . Robert E. Redford is working for M. Gates in Unity. . . . Miss Edith Lawrence has leased the Webber Downer place for two months. Her nephew, Lawrence Clark, is with her, attending school in the Penney district. . . . W. A. Sparrow was in Belfast on business May 10th. . . . Joseph Wing of Thordike visited his schoolmate, Loring Stewart, May 11th. . . . Mrs. Jennie R. Webb has bought what is known as the George Peabody farm in Swanville, and she and her husband, Porter F. Webb, have moved there. . . . Fred N. Flye has been repairing the home buildings. He has built a piece on the barn, laid new floors, built a piazza and had a cistern put in the cellar. . . . The A. A. club met with Mrs. Grace Linscott Friday evening, May 14th. They read the life Augusta Evans Wilson, after which fruit punch and peanuts were served. . . . Juanita Temple has changed its meetings from Tuesday evening to Saturday evening. . . . Mr. Fraiser from Bangor Seminary occupied the pulpit Sunday morning, May 16th, and delivered a very interesting sermon from Isaiah 32-2.

LINCOLNVILLE.

Dr. Alfred W. Vezzie of Bangor and Boston called on his friend, Russell P. Ames Saturday. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Will Newbert of Appleton visited Mrs. N's brother, T. E. Gushue, Sunday. . . . Miss Ruby D. Kimball of Camden is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Will Barton. . . . Miss Mae Pendleton called on her friend Miss Stella Derry in Camden Friday. . . . Mrs. Harriet Benner of Lynn, Mass., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Otis Heald. . . . C. A. Warren went to Vinhaven Friday, where he has employment in a granite quarry. . . . F. S. Richards, who has been visiting relatives here and in Camden, returned to Searsport Tuesday. . . . Capt. O. E. Ames placed his motor boat, Wahnetta, in commission Wednesday. . . . Edgar S. Mathews of Springfield, Mass., is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Mathews. . . . F. S. Coombs of Camden called on his father, L. S. Coombs, Sunday. He came up in his new runabout. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Underhill visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Flag, in Belmont, Sunday. . . . Louie Drinkwater is stopping a few days with his grandfather, Mr. R. Sherman. We are glad to hear that Mr. Sherman has been quite ill, and much improved at this writing. Dr. Hart is attending him. . . . Fred Young and two friends of Dark Harbor called on Mr. Young's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. Young Sunday. They went back with Capt. Ames in the Wahnetta. . . . F. S. Richards, who has been visiting relatives in town for a few days, has returned to Searsport, where he has employment.

The Guardian Deities of The Grange.

The information of those who may be interested to know the history of the Grange, is supposed to reside in the hands of the Patrons of Husbandry. The Grange is a society of farmers and their families, who are supposed to be the only ones who can write out their stories as briefly as possible, and consistently with a true narrative.

ERES.

As she was called by the name of Demeter, was the deity who presided over agriculture in general, and the goddess of the growing grain. Demeter, signifies the goddess of the earth, and was one of a number of goddesses who were supposed to preside over the various departments of agriculture. By her influence, the earth was made fertile, and the various crops were made to grow. She was also supposed to be the goddess of the harvest, and was therefore worshipped with great reverence by the farmers.

Flora was one of the most ancient of the Roman deities, and was venerated as the goddess of flowers. Her worship is traced away back to the time of Tullus, who, after the little affair of appropriating the Sabine women by the Romans, reigned jointly with Romulus, the founder of Rome. Numa, the second king of Rome, assigned her a priest of her own, and her festival, called the Floralia, was annually celebrated from the 28th of April to the 1st of May with great rejoicing and with beautiful ceremonies. The doors of the houses were festooned with flowers, and wreaths of flowers were worn in the hair.

The festival of the Floralia was originally conducted in a most chaste and appropriate manner, but in the course of time it very much degenerated and assumed a tumultuous and somewhat questionable character, much so that persons of pure and virtuous instincts refrained from all participation in its loose revelry. This lapse, however, was by no means the fault of Flora, and she is today venerated by all good patrons of the world over, as the pure and lovely goddess of flowers and blossoms. A fine marble statue in the museum at Naples, called the Farnese Flora, represents her as a beautiful girl crowned with garlands of flowers.

Children Cry FOR FLETCHER'S CASTORIA

Maine Odd Fellows Field Day.

June, the great month for conventions, will be ushered in at Fort Fairfield by the International Odd Fellows Field Day, June 8, 9 and 10. It will be an event of especial interest to Maine Odd Fellows and Aroostook lodges in particular. Elaborate preparations are being made for this mammoth gathering, which will probably surpass anything of the kind ever witnessed in northern Aroostook.

One of the marked and most important features of the affair will be the issuance of an elegant official souvenir book of Odd Fellowship, which is being especially prepared for the occasion. Contributions from some of the brainiest men of the order will occupy considerable space in this work. Following is a list of the principal articles already contributed for the book:

Welcome to Fort Fairfield, E. E. Seates.

Odd Fellowship, Its History and Principles, Hon. A. S. Pinkerton, P. G. S. M. The Subordinate Lodge, Hon. Ira G. Hersey, G. M.

The Encampment, C. F. Allen, G. P. The Rebekahs, Mrs. Sarah C. Cook, president.

The Department, P. M. of Maine, Brig. Gen. L. M. Poor.

Odd Fellowship in Maine, Russell G. Dyer, G. S.

Odd Fellowship in Maritime Provinces, W. S. Hooper, D. G. M.

Subordinate Lodge of Maritime Provinces, Hon. John Johnston, G. M.

Early History of Odd Fellowship, Hon. John A. McDonald, P. G. R.

Growth and Present Condition of I. O. O. F., Hon. John B. Goodwin, Toronto, G. S. S. G. L.

Sovereign Grand Lodge, Judge W. L. Kuykendall, Grand Sir.

Patriarchs Militant, Gen. M. A. Raney, Poem (original), Mrs. L. E. Guild, P. N. G.

A brief outline of this International Field Day, June 8, 9, 10, really a three-day celebration, is as follows:

First day, annual meeting of the Department of Patriarchs Militant, I. O. O. F. of Maine.

Second day, grand parade, publicly conferring the Decoration of Chivalry upon two of Aroostook Rebekahs; addresses, sports, etc. At night, grand illumination, torch light parade, fireworks and electrical display, etc.

Third day, 65 miles complimentary auto tour through the Aroostook valley to our guests, the Department Council of Maine and the Maritime Provinces. Grand officers and other distinguished Odd Fellows and their ladies, with reception at Caribou, Washburn and Easton and noon banquet at Presque Isle, returning to Fort Fairfield in time to take the 4 p. m. train for home.

Communications have been sent to the lodges throughout the county and Maritime Provinces, and cantons all over the State, urging them to begin work at once to make all necessary plans and to see to it that their individual lodge is provided with all necessary equipments and regalia. As a special inducement prizes and diplomas will be offered to lodges and members to comply with the rules and regulations governing their proper appearance in public display and parades. Below is a list of prizes and diplomas offered as a competition in the grand parade:

1. To the canton making the best general and military appearance in the parade.

2. To the canton having the most new chevrons in line that have been mustered in from Nov. 1, 1908, to June 5, 1909.

3. To the subordinate lodge having the largest number of members in line uniformed.

4. To the subordinate lodge making the best general appearance in the parade.

5. To the subordinate lodge having the largest number in line in proportion to their membership.

6. To the subordinate lodge having the largest number of new members in line who joined from November 1, 1908, to June 5, 1909.

7. To the Rebekah lodge making the best general appearance in floats or carriages.

A souvenir badge is being designed to be worn by every member in attendance. The very best medal of the year has been chosen for a meeting of this character in Aroostook county, and Pioneer Lodge of Fort Fairfield is looking forward to a full delegation to be in attendance from all over the State and Maritime Provinces.

House Without a Chimney.

A house of concrete! A house without a chimney! A house with plenty of artificial light and heat and yet without a bit of fire. No coal; no ashes; no soot; no dangerous gases.

Such is the ideal Twentieth-Century Home which Mr. F. M. Sinsbaugh has just completed for his comfort at Carrollton, Illinois. While this wonderful residence is now the first of its kind in the world, it is, perhaps, a good example of what the average American home will be in a few years from now when both wood and coal have become too expensive for common use. Wood is now too scarce and high in price for common building material and the time is already here when, for economy's sake, architects and contractors are figuring to construct all buildings of steel and concrete. As the supply of coal diminishes the cost is advancing, so that everything possible is being done to husband the supply and see that none of the precious stored heat is wasted. Electricity, generated by water power, is even now taking the place of coal as a source of power and the time is surely coming when it will rank first as a source of heat.

Mr. Sinsbaugh's modern Twentieth-Century Home is 34x50 feet, two stories high, with attic and basement, and has eight rooms on the two main floors. While Edison's idea of a concrete house to be poured in one big mould was not carried out, yet the principal building material was concrete. The foundation and walls are of concrete blocks. The concrete was mixed and moulded into the building blocks as required. There was no waste of building material. The floors are of wood and the interior is finished in plaster and oak. Such a house requires very little wood. The style of architecture is of the plain, substantial, mission type. This idea is carried throughout the interior as well. The building is fronted by a large porch 32x32 feet. This concrete and wood finished house cost less than $3,000.

The interior is roomy and comfortable. On the left of the entrance hall is the parlor, and on the right the library; back or the latter is located the dining room, connected by a pantry with the kitchen. The house is illuminated with electric lights. The chandeliers and lighting fixtures are of hard wood and stained glass, producing a very beautiful effect.

Perhaps the most novel feature about this wonderful residence is the fact that it is heated by steam from a central station. There is no noisy, dusty furnace in the basement demanding daily attention and tender care all the long winter months. Instead, the steam which usually goes to waste about small electric light plants is carried to the house by underground pipes. The steam enters the house in the basement and the steam is carried to the rooms just the same as from an ordinary furnace. The rooms are heated with steam radiators. Of course some special arrangement had to be supplied to furnish hot water for the bath room. Near the ceiling in the bath room is located a hot water tank which is kept constantly hot by a number of small pipes through which a continual flow of hot steam is maintained. This tank supplies hot water for the bath and to the wash bowls located in two of the upstairs bedrooms. The house is also wired for electric heat in case anything should happen to the steam heating system.

When it is remembered that there are no fires about this modern dwelling the visitor begins to wonder how the metal pipes, No steel range is visible in the neat and roomy kitchen. No sooty gas stove glares black and threatening from the side walls. The principal article of furniture seems to be an oak sideboard—or something that looks as though it might be a sideboard. This "sideboard" is nothing more or less than one of the new General Electric electric stoves. The back of the wooden cabinet is a small switchboard and all the utensils arranged on the stove are connected to this switchboard with suitable wires and plugs. A turn of the switch and the electric teakettle is singing over invisible heat. With the same ease the frying pan, cereal cooker, griddle, broiler, vegetable cooker, etc., are made ready for their share of the work of preparing a meal. Beside the cabinet sits the electric oven wherein the heat is so economized and concentrated that the choicest roast can be prepared in less time than it usually takes to start a slow coal fire. The other electrical kitchen devices, including the electric flatiron, are used in the same clean, simple and economical manner. There is no sweltering heat in the kitchen, no soot, no ashes, no dirt, no hot fires for ironing days; no logging of heavy scuttles of coal from the basement.

In fact so easily and conveniently are the meals cooked that the coffee, tea and toast are prepared right on the dining room table. The electric coffee percolator, at the turn of a switch, prepares the coffee while the cereal is being cooked. The toast is ready with the coffee. The cost of cooking the meals by electricity in this home is estimated at less than $3.50 a month for a family of five persons.

By utilizing the waste steam from the electric light plant the cost of heating the house in cold weather is reduced to a minimum. Besides, it saves heating for a night furnace and handling coal and ashes. The room that a furnace and coal bin ordinarily take up can be used for other purposes. With special meter rates for electric heating the cost of cooking the various meals is no more than it would be if coal or gas was used, and the cleanliness, convenience and healthfulness of electricity is worth more than money can buy.

The greatest inventor and genius in the world has predicted that the house of the near future will be made entirely of concrete, cast in a mould. Scientists have predicted that the home of the future will have no chimney or flue. These ideas are all incorporated in Mr. Sinsbaugh's Twentieth-Century Home.

FOLEY'S HONEY AND TAR stops the cough and heals lungs

The Summer State of Maine.

The Maine Central Railroad has issued three very attractive booklets pertaining to "The Summer State of Maine." One has to do with the many attractive resorts, both along the coast and inland, together with the price of board at the summer hotels. Another booklet is entitled "I Go Fishing Via Maine Central Railroad," and contains a handsomely illustrated catalogue of the many places where our summer visitors may successfully fish to their heart's content. To him who has gone before, no further announcement is needed, but as the great army of fishermen and women is being strongly augmented each season, the Maine Central offers a few suggestions as to "Where to go," "What to take," and "What 'tilt' cost." The third booklet tells, "Where the Traveler May Stay in Maine," and contains a list of the leading business hotels. The Maine Central Railroad Company will be glad to send either of these publications to any one on receipt of a five-cent stamp. They are well worth sending for.

If you desire a clear complexion take Foley's Orino Laxative for constipation and liver trouble as it will stimulate these organs and thoroughly cleanse your system, which is what everyone needs in the spring in order to feel well. Sold by all druggists.

DON'T SAY IT.

Some Common Geographical Errors Pointed Out.

[Goldsworthy's Geographical Magazine.]

Don't say or write Austro-Hungary. The best writers prefer Austria-Hungary. Don't call the Chinese "Mongolians." It is better to reserve the latter name for the people who live north of China proper.

Don't speak of a native of China as a Chinaman. You would not say that you had an Ireland man digging in your garden. It is better to call John a Chinese.

Don't, please don't, say that New York City is located on Manhattan Island. Such a misuse of the verb "to locate" is trying to the nerves of the best lexicographers. Say New York City is situated on Manhattan Island.

Don't speak of China as our Antipodes. Our Antipodes is the point on the other side of the world reached by a straight line passing through the place on which we stand and the center of the earth. Our Antipodes is in the ocean southwest of Australia.

Don't forget that Oriental names ending in "an" have the accent almost invariably on the last syllable, as Teheran, Beloochistan.

Don't imagine that the spelling of geographical names in the newspapers is necessarily accurate. It is safe to say that one half of the place names in Africa and Asia, as they appear in our recent press, are mangled almost beyond recognition by the scribble or the types.

Don't call Bermuda "North American island," as a writer in a New York newspaper did the other day. There are plenty of North American islands, but Bermuda is not one of them. It is an oceanic, not a continental, island.

Don't be mystified if on one map in your atlas Hudson bay seems to be larger than the Gulf of Mexico, while on another sheet of the same atlas the Gulf of Mexico appears larger than Hudson bay. The apparent discrepancy is doubtless due to the different map projections employed. You know, for instance, that areas far removed from the equator are very much exaggerated as they appear on maps of the Mercator projection.

Don't say that the compass points to the true north, for it doesn't except in certain places. The compass points to the magnetic north, which is at present considerably west of the North Pole. From Lieutenant Greely was at Lady Franklin bay, the declination of his needle was found to be very great, the needle pointing toward the magnetic pole in a direction nearly southwest.

Don't make the mistake some people do of thinking the word "alluvium" to be synonymous with "soil." Only those soils which are the result of the deposition of sediment by running water can properly be called alluvial soils.

Don't for mercy's sake, say "The Smithsonian Institution." The name is The Smithsonian Institution. When you are writing a novel don't get your geographical facts so badly mixed as to reflect discredit upon your early training. In one of the popular novels of the day, the Azores are referred to as in a southern latitude. The writer also introduced his hero into the Antarctic regions in January, and speaks of the "pink blackness" of the nights he experienced there. Of course anybody ought to know that the month of January is the height of the Antarctic summer, and the entire month is one continuous day.

JOSEPH A. HOMAN.

In the death of Joseph A. Homan of Augusta, the well known newspaper man, in the 34th year of his age, there remain but two of the original members of the Maine Press association—Hiram K. Morrell of Gardiner, and William A. Pidgeon of the Lewiston Journal. In his boyhood Mr. Homan had a hard struggle with poverty. When a school boy in Boston he was in the procession to welcome Gen. Lafayette, and he often told us how proud he felt when the great Frenchman affectionately put his hand upon his head. Early he chose the stage for his profession, appearing in minor characters with Edwin Forrest and Charlotte Cushman. He was disliked, and he learned the printing business, after which he drifted down to Maine and worked as a journeyman printer in Bangor and Augusta, finally becoming one of the proprietors of the Gospel Banner and Maine Farmer. His mind was richly stored with ancient lore, and he "kept up with the procession" in modern affairs. His mind was as clear as crystal, and his heart was as pure and untrammelled as a child's. He lived next door neighbor to James G. Blaine, and was the intimate friend and counsellor of the great statesman.

Fire at Branch Mills.

The house and barn owned and occupied by Michael Thomas and located on the road from Branch Mills to Week's Mills, near the Sproul mill, were destroyed by fire about 4 a. m. May 13th together with the greater part of the household goods and farming tools. The fire is supposed to have been due to a train sleeping in the barn. The house was a story-and-a-half structure and was new a few years ago. The loss will be about $1600 with an insurance of $850.

The Effect of Moral Suasion.

Moral suasion, it is true, has no effect upon the "rum seller," but it formerly had a great power with the drinkers, and reformers were numerous in Maine and elsewhere. The drinker, crosses the saloon, before the saloon makes the drunkard—Oxford County Citizen.

TONE UP THE STOMACH

Get Rid of the Gas, Headaches and Dizziness.

The symptoms of stomach trouble vary. Some victims have a ravenous appetite, some loathe the sight of food. Often there is a feeling as of weight on the chest, a full feeling in the throat. Sometimes the gas presses on the heart and leads the sufferer to think he has heart disease. Sick headache is a frequent and distressing symptom.

A very delicate stomach requires easily digested food but nature never intended that the food should be digested before it is eaten. The stomach must be strengthened to perform its own work and what it needs is not food already digested but a tonic. The processes of digestion are controlled by the blood and nerves, and medical science has produced no better digestive tonic than

ROYAL Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

The Only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar—made from Grapes—

Royal Baking Powder has not its counterpart at home or abroad. Its qualities, which make the food nutritious and healthful, are peculiar to itself and are not constituent in other leavening agents.

ful financially for her owners, having paid her first cost in a little more than three years after she was launched. During the twenty-five years that she was owned in Searsport she was commanded by the following Searsport captains: John G. Pendleton, B. F. Pendleton, J. H. Colcord, W. V. Nichols, J. P. Butman, F. I. Pendleton, J. T. Erskine and B. F. Colcord. She was sold to the Luckenbachs of New York in 1892 for a coal barge, and ended her days May 1, 1909, on Sandy Hook Bar, coal laden, breaking in two just forward of the mizzen mast during a heavy blow.

OBITUARY. Mrs. Matilda B. S. Nichols died at the residence of her son-in-law, Capt. James C. Gilmore, Saturday, May 15th, having been an invalid for many years, during which time she had lived with Miss Angie Gilmore, who tenderly cared for her in her declining years. She was born in Thomaston January 13, 1819, the daughter of John and Patience (Otis) Simonton. She married Capt. Amos Nichols of Searsport, August 12, 1838, by whom she had six children. She was a most estimable woman and very refined. She is survived by three children—one daughter, Mrs. James C. Gilmore, and two sons, Capt. Wilfred V. Nichols and Capt. Amos Nichols, all of Searsport. Funeral services were held at the residence of Capt. James C. Gilmore, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. H. McElhinney of the First Cong'l church officiating. Interment was in the family lot in Elmwood cemetery.

Mrs. Ruth Torbett-Bradbury, who died Tuesday morning at her home on Bellevue street, was a granddaughter of Gen. Drake. She was born in Indianapolis, Ind. As a young woman she was on the operatic stage and met with much success there. Her husband, James H. Bradbury, is a well known comedian and at present is playing in a stock company in Chicago. Mrs. Bradbury was of Colonial ancestry and was a member of John Hancock chapter, D. A. R. She was among those who established the New England Peabody Home for Crippled Children in Hyde Park and gave much of her time and talents to this and other charities. She wrote many pleasing stories and verses. For the last year she has lived in Medford Hillside. She is survived by her husband, one daughter, Alma, who goes to Tufts, and a son, Horatio. The funeral was held 10:30 yesterday at her late home, Prof. Bolles, of Tufts college, officiating—Massachusetts paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury were well and favorably known by Searsport people, having passed two summers in town, and being associated with Richard P. Smith in several dramas given at Union hall. Mr. Bradbury and family have the sincere sympathy of Searsport people in their sad loss.

The News of Brooks.

Mrs. Dora Carpenter got home last Saturday from a month spent in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Chase of Monroe visited her friend, Mrs. Charles Jenkins of this place, last week.

Isaac S. Staples is building a new dwelling house in front of his carriage repository.

E. G. Roberts was called to Boston last Monday on business in connection with the creamery.

Frank Holbrook is in Houlton, where he has business as a draughtsman for the railroad people.

Mrs. John Hutchins has been seriously ill for several weeks.

Mrs. A. B. Payson is in Massachusetts visiting her aunts, Mrs. Flora Thompson and Mrs. Lizzie Bushfield.

Mrs. Oscar Dow of Monroe spent several days here recently with her sister, Mrs. Charles Jenkins.

Chas. E. Lane was suddenly taken quite ill last Saturday. He has a large amount of business to attend to.

John W. Hobbs has a nice new stable nearly finished. When he undertakes a job it is usually pushed for all there is in it.

J. G. Stimpson is building a stable, which will be a great advantage to him as he has been obliged to keep several horses in a small place.

Miss Sarah Haskell, who has been visiting her niece, Mrs. B. O. Norton, in Thomaston, came home to Brooks last week to spend the summer.

Miss Mary Davis and her niece, Dorcas Davis, went to Providence last week, where they will visit friends awhile and then return to the farm in Monroe for the summer.

The officers of the Good Templar lodge were installed last Saturday evening by H. M. Brown, L. D., and are as follows: C. T., E. C. Brady, V. T., Mrs. Hattie Gibbs, Sec'y, Miss Arline Estes; A. S., Miss Alice Roberts; F. S., Carl Jenkins; Treas., Robert Stiles; Chap., Mrs. Belle Boddy; Supt. of J., Mrs. Etta Peavy; M. Hugh Gordon; D. M., Alice Reynolds; G. W. Gwynn; Sentinel, Earle Roberts; P. C. T., Everett Cilley.

The Board of Trade held their regular meeting last week and considerable routine business was transacted. This organization has really been a good thing as matters of general benefit to the town are discussed. It was of great help in the creating of our present fire department, in the efficiency of our school system, and in many other lines of thought and work. At present the matter of proposed new streets for the village is receiving special attention. Very much credit should be given to Dr. N. R. Cook, who has been the secretary from the beginning, and who has been untiring in his efforts to accomplish good results from the meetings.

Augustus Cilley, formerly of this town, died in Garden Valley, California, May 3, 1909. He was born in Brooks July 23, 1830, and was therefore 79 years of age. He was a son of the late Judah Cilley of this town, and Noyes and L. C. Cilley are his half brothers. He was a school teacher when a young man and possessed some literary ability, and selections from his poetry were published in The Journal last winter. While in Brooks he married Lydia Sturtevant, whose father, John Sturtevant, lived on what is now the Riley Wiggins place in Knox. She lived but a short time after their marriage. We remember her as one of our first school teachers. He afterwards married a woman from Vermont and leaves a son and a daughter in California. He will be remembered by our older people as one of the most promising young men of this town.

CENTER MONTVILLE.

Volney Thompson shipped a light driving carriage to a gentleman in Fort Collins, Colorado, last Monday morning. The dwelling house of Mrs. George Young of Montville was considerably injured by lightning during the thunder shower last Friday afternoon. The house was insured. Mrs. Harry Mason, who has been visiting her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O. Mason, returned to her home in Orono, N. H., last Thursday. Mr. Harrison Terry began work on his new barn this week. Mr. Penny of Knox has charge of the work. Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Myrick of Hall-land were at P. A. C. Camp, Sunday. Mrs. Clara B. Palmer is ill. Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Whitcomb of Belfast were at T. S. Erskine's Sunday. During the electric storm of Friday afternoon lightning struck an elm tree by the house of Mrs. George Young (near McFarland's corner) and hurled a heavy limb over the house. The bolt entered the open kitchen window where Pearl Young and Mrs. W. C. Crockett were sitting, damaging a lounge. The chimney was struck, every pane of glass on the side of the house next to the tree were broken, and two board walks overturned. No fire ensued and no one was injured beyond a shock.

RESULTS TELL.

There Can be No Doubt About the Results in Belfast.

Results tell the tale. All doubt is removed. The testimony of a Belfast citizen Can be easily investigated. What better proof can be had? Mrs. G. L. Field, 2 Union Street, Belfast, Me., says: "There is not a word of the statement I gave in 1904 in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills that I wish to retract. This remedy proved to be a genuine kidney cure in my case and I have often advised other people to use it. The worst symptom of my trouble was a pain in the region of my kidneys, at times quite severe. The kidney secretions were unnatural in appearance and too frequent in action. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me after other remedies had failed and I have only been obliged to resort to them on one occasion since. That was about a year ago when I had a slight backache and some trouble with the kidneys. One box of Doan's Kidney Pills brought relief and I have been perfectly well ever since. Doan's Kidney Pills can be procured at Wilson's Drug Store. For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
